Goober says, 'Hey!'

By Jonathan King

On Saturday, March 16, Shelton State hosted the fourth annual Alabama Stage And Screen Hall Of Fame Gala. Its three inductees were some of the most recognizable names on TV, the big screen, and Broadway.

The inductees were Dean Jones, star of many Disney movies such as Herbie the Love Bug, and Beethoven; George Lindsay, most well known for his role as "Goober" on The Andy Griffith Show, and Mayberry RFD; and Hugh Martin, who wrote vocal arrangements for Rogers & Hammerstein, and wrote the timeless holiday song "Have Yourself A Merry Little Christmas."

"You gotta come from somewhere," quipped George Lindsay, a native of Jasper, "I was just lucky to have come from Alabama." Indeed, all of the inductees seemed grateful for their Alabama roots. After noting that five members of his high school class were in attendance that evening, Dean Jones had this to say:

George "Goober" Lindsay was inducted into the Alabama Stage and Screen Hall of Fame at Shelton State

"It cultivates in you an appreciation for what's real and honest, and what enduring values mean. Five members of my high school class are here supporting me. To look at them brings back so many memories. Other than one uncle I have who's 95, this is all I've got as far as family is concerned. These friends become even more precious because of the time that has passed. Thinking about it makes me proud, and also humbled. Proud to the point of being thankful."

Joking about his success, George Lindsay had this to say to an inquiring reporter, "It's great to be able to come back (to Alabama). If you're able to come back, that means you were successful. If you weren't successful, 'you can never go back home'."

Hugh Martin was unable to attend the gala due to distance and health, but thanked Alabama for its wonderful support in a video presentation.

Ambassadors have great fun with big job

By Jenifer Wallace

The campus visitor was confused. Where did he need to go to get his ticket? He looked around until he found a smiling, young face. They're usually there when you need one: A Shelton State Ambassador.

The Ambassadors serve as the official hosts and hostesses for Shelton State. Ambassadors are chosen from interested high school seniors and current Shelton State students each fall and spring semester. Students in the Ambassador program are involved in the life of Shelton State beyond the classroom.

around Shelton's campuses for high school students, help with fund-raisers for Shelton State's Adopt-A-School partner, greet the community at Shelton State functions, and work with service agencies in West Alabama.

One Shelton administrator who gratefully makes use of the Ambassadors is Registrar Diane Layton. "It is a wonderful organization," Layton says.

Gouge O'Life

By Ben Herdman

I was on my way to dinner and a movie with a girl who just moved in from out of town. She said she found a cushy place on the university of campus and gave me the address. It was a nice house, on of those older places with a definite history to it.

I double-checked the address that I jotted down while I was half-asleep. The writing was sloppy but I was sure I was at the right place.

I gave the tips of my shoes a final shine on the back of my pant legs and gave the doorbell a ring. First of all, not only was the person at the front door not my date, but it was a man of about ninety years. He wore nothing except a pair of slippers and a fisherman's hat. Normally, faced with such a scenario, my first instinct would be to laugh, but there was something about the .38 Special that he had pointed at my face that kept me quiet.

The old man shook his wooden cane at me and said, "I told you people never to come around here again! How many times do I have to tell you kids that I don't want any of your stinking raffle tickets! It's the gas chamber for you, boy!"

I threw my hands up in surrender. "Hey wait a minute! Uh, I think I'm in the wrong place. No need for a shootout, okay?"

The next step was to take off running, but then my date came to the door. She turned the old man around manually and said, "It's all right, Gramps, This is my guest. Now go downstairs." Her grandfather trudged down the hallway and out of sight.

Well, this is great, I thought. Just me, my lovely date, and her gun-toting nudist grandfather. The night could be redeemed as long as the old man was kept at bay. I said nothing about the incident and went to the kitchen to prepare some pasta.

Then her grandpa came back upstairs. This time he wasn't brandishing a gun. It was a power drill. He activated the Black & Decker on and off like a kid playing with a toy. As he walked toward me I was prepared for him to say something threatening to me, but he walked passed me and directly up to my date and said, "Did you get the door?"

With Shadow Warriors, Tom Clancy leaves fiction for the real world of today. Working with Gen. Carl Stiner and Tony Koltz, Clancy traces the development of the military's Special Forces from their early days in the 1950's, through the Vietnam era, and up to the present time.

Despite its title, Shock, by Robin Cook, starts out quietly enough. Grad student Deborah and her pal Joanna answer an ad from the Wingate Infertility Clinic that seeks Ivy-league egg donors. With the money they make on the deal, the pair go halves on a two-bedroom condo and then blow some more on an extended trip to Venice. It's when they get back that things start to stir. Like the cat in the adage, Joanna just can't resist the urge to see what happened to their donated eggs, and with Deborah in tow, the two plunge ahead only to discover that the clinic and its mission aren't quite what they seem.

For more than 20 years, Dominick Dunne has made his career writing in Vanity Fair about the crimes and trials, affairs and foibles of the remarkably wealthy. Now in the book Justice, Dunne rounds out his long career with a collection of his past writings on crime in the upper reaches. O.J. Simpson, Claus von Bulow, and Michael Skakel, as well as several others, are here and each find themselves under Dunne's clear and piercing eye.

The Shelton State Courier is a "campus newspaper" written and produced with the help of students.

Among other functions, it is intended as a vehicle for student expression, and all students are urged to participate with submissions of written and artistic material.

The college seeks to fulfill the statement for academic freedom in working with the students in the production of this paper:

"The college seeks to provide an atmosphere conducive to open and honest intellectual inquiry in any college forum which is appropriate for dialogue and student participation. The students should feel free to exercise the right to dissent within limits of decorum and good taste."

All publications are subject to review by the Publications Action Group, which has been delegated the responsibility to review all college publications for content and accuracy.

was centered around these three, the award ceremony was hardly the only thing happening.

The night began with a silent auction in the hallway next to the admissions office. Tables had been set up with everything from collectibles to Alabama vs. Auburn skybox seats.

While the bidding was taking place, couples who had donned their formal best schmoozed and sampled the hors d'oeuvres and wine available. This went on until it was time to enter the Bean-Brown Theatre for the awards ceremony.

The ceremony, hosted by news anchors Sarah Verser and Rick Journey, began with a tribute to Hugh Martin, followed by a tribute to Dean Jones, and last, but not least, a tribute to George Lindsay.

The ceremony was dazzling, and the actors and actresses who did the salutes to the inductees were fully appreciated by the audience. From the mellow sound of "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas," written by H. Martin, to a rousing display of emotion by Charles Prosser, performing "Someone to Love" from Company.

Each inductee made a speech on receiving their award, with the exception of Hugh Martin. His nephew and brother accepted for him.

Dean Jones gave a moving speech about how grateful and undeserving he was of such an honor.

"I was famous because of the movies and Hollywood, but the deserving people are these," he said, pointing out his classmates. "These are the firemen, and accountants and doctors and lawyers, and everyday workers who don't get the recognition they deserve."

When George Lindsay accepted his award he was in his true form: a comedian. He told three or four jokes before thanking everyone and then the ceremony was over, but more still remained for the evening.

From there the tux-and-gown crowd seated themselves in the atrium, which was decorated by Ray Taylor with modern dazzle and lights that changed the color of the room occasionally. To the back, buffet tables were setup with hors d'oeuvres and prime rib.

For dessert there was a fondue table with angel food cake squares that could be dipped into one of a few sauces: chocolate, white chocolate, and dark chocolate. The room was divided into two sides and the empty room in the middle served as a dance floor, where couples danced to live jazz music the entire rest of the night.

The uniform impression from the crowd was that it was a wonderful experience to meet stars that fell on Alabama, and to share this evening of prestige with them.

Sports

—The Buccaneers are Here to Play—

Buccaneer baseball off to boffo beginning

On Wednesday, March 27, Shelton State built a steady lead through five innings, then broke out the power and broke open the game.

Shelton beat last year's state champions, Beville State, 8-0 in the first game and then swept the second game 9-6. Shelton State scored three runs in the sixth off two doubles and a home run to finish big.

"That's the way we have been playing," Shelton state coach Bobby Sprowl said. "We try to get a lead and let our pitching and defense take over."

The Buccaneers improved to 16-5 overall and a perfect 5-0 in conference play.

Shelton State then took a 4 run lead in the 6th inning. Bruce Sprowl led off with a single, his third hit of the game. Winning pitcher Jeff Beagle is now a perfect 4-0 in starts. He is not only a great pitcher but can hit the ball as well. Beagle kept things going when he stepped to the plate with two outs and hit a double to get on second base with 2 outs. Then Beagle scored on Jody Colvins double. Next Jacob Elmore singled and drove in pinch runner Nick Richardson to make it 6-0. Tom Whitaker then blasted a two run home run over the fence in right-center.

"It was a fast ball up and away," said Whitaker, who also doubled in the game. "This is my first home run, it's about time."

Beagle a left-hander ace is a recent signee at the University of Alabama only gave up four hits in six innings, then Austin Tubb pitched one hitless inning to close out the game for Shelton.

"This by far is the worst Beagle has pitched all season, he hasn't given up a run this whole year. He did not have control, but he got by with some off speed pitches, he is a competitor," said coach Sprowl.

On Monday, April 1, the Buccaneer 9 defeated Snead State 21-1 and 7-0. This raised their record to 18-6 overall and 8-0 in AJCCC play.

Softball team takes two, also

On Tuesday, April 2, the Lady Buc softball team beat Faulkner State 14-0 and 6-1 in doubleheader action.

Golfers beat 16 teams to take Scottsboro title

Will Taylor wins his Spring Fling Invitational held in Scottsboro, Ala. shooting 74 in the first round and 67 in the second. This was Taylor's third tournament win in his career at Shelton State. The team also won out of seventeen schools shooting 294 six over par and 287 one under par.

Christian Johanson shot 76 first round and 80 second round, Tommy Ryan 74 first round and 75 second round. Pope Spruiell 77 first round and 72 second, Calle Andren first round 70 and 73 second.

Coach Matt Terry said, "I was very pleased with the guys after the poor performance in Galveston."

The Shelton State men's golf team shot a final-round 296 and finished in fourth place at the Stillwaters Invitational tournament which concluded at the legend Course on Sunday.

Indian Hills (Fla.) community College took first place in the seven-team field with an 882.

Calle Andren was the low scorer for Shelton State, shooting a 73 on Sunday and finishing the tournament at 223. Jason Davidson had the lowest round for Shelton State on Sunday with a 70 and finished at 228.

Other scorers for the Bucs included Pope Spruiell (77-228), Will Taylor (80-229) and David Rasco (76-238).

Lady Bucs suffer injuries in national losses

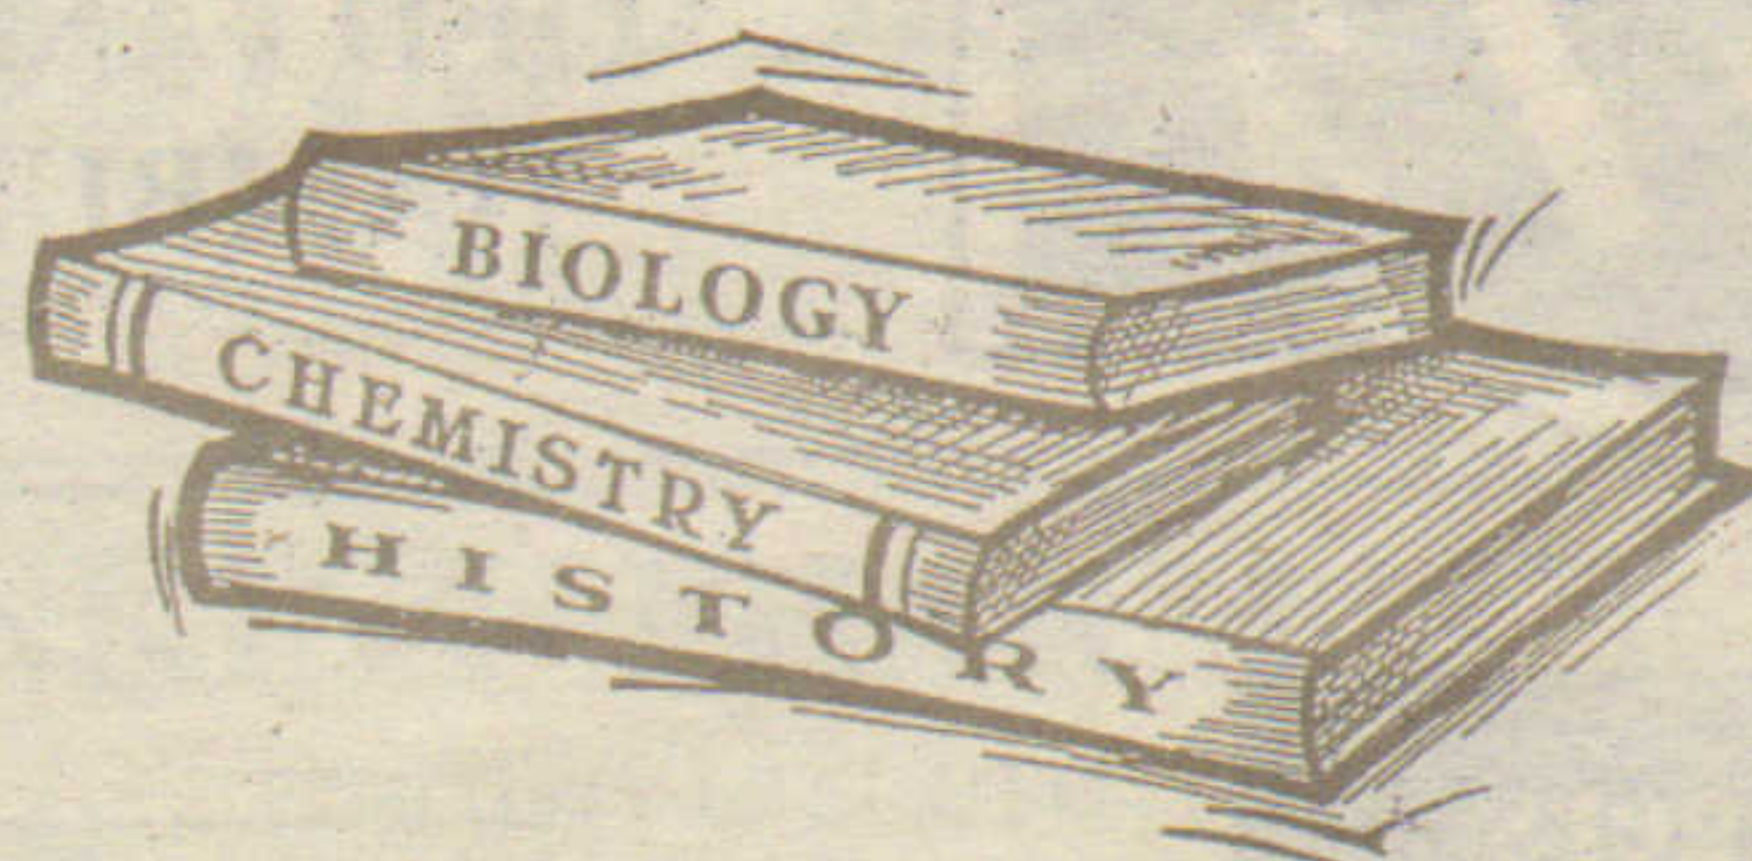

The Lady Buccaneer basketball team had its troubles during play in the national tournament in Hagerstown, Md. March 20-21.

In the first round game, the Lady Bucs lost to Johnson County, Kans. 74-64, after LaTonya Henry broke her foot in the opening minutes of play.

In its second game, Shelton lost to Monroe, N.Y., C.C., 66-56, after Carol McDonald tore an ankle ligament. The team finished with a 26-8 record.

Shelton Jubilee Update

By Lucy Kubiszyn

Editor's Note: Shelton PR Director will keep readers informed about plans for the college's 50th anniversary

All of the committees working on the Shelton State Jubilee, the celebration of the college's 50th anniversary, are meeting on a regular basis.

We are looking for any film or video footage that we might use. We are also looking for old photographs that might be available. If you have any information concerning any of these items, please call Lucy Kubiszyn, 205-391-2221.

Plans are already underway for Homecoming 2002 which will be held on Saturday, Nov. 16. This year's Homecoming will include a large reunion and reception for former students. The reception will be held in the afternoon from 3-5 p.m. preceding the annual basketball game and crowning of the 2002 homecoming queen. The music department is planning a concert on Sunday, Nov. 17, featuring current and former Shelton Singers.

"For the students it is an opportunity to belong to a group that really gets to know the Shelton community, the faculty and administration. Working as an Ambassador is also a great way to learn and practice leadership skills." They also try to spend quality time in fellowship.

Shelton asks Ambassadors to give a minimum of 35 hours of service to the college each semester. Students chosen to be ambassadors receive a $300 book scholarship for each semester of service.

Fourth semester ambassador Misty Carr thinks the group provides a good education of its own. "You get a chance to develop relationships with many of the faculty and students," Carr says. "Being a member has really helped me develop public communication skills."

Dean of Students Humphrey Lee echoes the feeling and observations of both the Ambassador students and the administration members who oversee them. "Over the years the Ambassadors have been really good for the college and really good for themselves. Some of the most accomplished and loyal Shelton alumni come from the ranks of the Ambassadors."

Deborah Bonner coordinates the Ambassadors for the college. She is very proud of the band she has managed to pull together this year. "There are 20 different Ambassadors from 10 different high schools. These are individuals with a lot of different, fine qualities who have bonded together to form a great group."

Shelton receives grant for technology training from the State of Alabama

Shelton State Community College recently received notification from the state of Alabama's Public School and College Authority Board that the college will receive $41,000 in funding that will be used to develop a state-of-art computer lab for technology training. The lab will be located in the Business and Industry Training Center housed on the college's Martin Campus.

The money for the computer lab was approved Governor Don Siegleman along with support from board members Dr. Henry C. Mabry, Dr. Donald Williamson, and Dr. Ed Richardson. State Senator Phil Poole, D-Moundville, was instrumental in acquiring the funds for the project.

We are pleased to receive the funds which will have an immediate impact on the training of our local work force," said Shelton President Rick Rogers. "This grant is a direct result of Senator Poole's commitment to technical training for West Alabama," said Rogers.

"The productivity levels of business and industry are becoming closely related to the ability of employees to operate computer controlled equipment and associated software," Rogers said.

In order for companies in this area to have access to proper training and certification to address these needs, Shelton State, through its training for Business and Industry Center, must continue to develop software training and certification programs. Shelton State has recently been designated an official Microsoft Office User Specialist (MOUS) testing center, and the installation of a computer lab devoted to employee development and training is part of the college's mission to be responsive to the community.

According to Steve Fair, director of the center, this new lab will provide training for business and industry through various software applications. The college hopes to have the lab functioning as soon as possible, realistically beginning in the fall, said Fair.

Information on the programs available through the college's Training for Business and Industry Center can be obtained by calling (205) 391-2434.

Theatre Tuscaloosa presents 'Seinfeldesque' comedy called Art

When Theatre Tuscaloosa unveils its production of Art, running April 12-21, 2002, area theatergoers will finally have the opportunity to experience the play the New York Times called "a remarkably wise, witty, and intelligent comedy" and Newsweek hailed as "a marriage between Moliere and Woody Allen." Art teams director John Butterfield with designers Andy Fitch (scenic designer), Jeanette Robertson (costume designer), Charlie Dennis (lighting designer) and stage manager Janet Hernandez.

When three best friends almost come to blows after one of them spends a small fortune on a controversial painting; underlying tensions in their relationship are brought to the fore. The play by Yasmina Reza has been called "a Seinfeldesque" comedy, filled with crackling crossfire. "Acclaimed throughout the world, Art has won the Tony Award in New York, the Olivier Award in London, and the Moliere Prize in Paris.

"This is a play about art as a specific catalyst which can transform our lives. It's about what art should do, it should shake us up, unsettle our lives, make us rethink our priorities and examine our relationships," said director John Butterfield.

"Art is a magical play," commented Theatre Tuscaloosa Executive Producer Paul K. Looney. "I think John is the perfect director for it."

Butterfield performed with Theatre Tuscaloosa's Stage Centre Company during its 1996 inaugural season in productions of Romance/Romance, And the World Goes Round, and The Glass Menagerie. Directorial credits include Charles Ludlam Medea, Sing To Me Through Open Windows, In Trousers, The Eight Reindeer Monologues and An Enemy of the People. He earned his Masters degree in Text and Performance at The Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts & Kings College, London, then served as Directing/Literary Management Intern with the Dallas Theater Center.

The cast for the production includes Daniel Meredith who was last seen on the Bean-Brown stage in Plaza Suite. For Theatre Tuscaloosa he has also appeared in Moon Over Buffalo and The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (Abridged). Allan McLeod, a University of Alabama theatre major, recently appeared in Noises Off and worked with producer/director Tom Cheron on a screenplay he co-wrote. Brandon Thompson, a first year theatre major at Shelton State Community College, was last seen in The Laramie Project.

Art will be presented on April 12-21, 2002 at the Bean-Brown Theatre on the campus of Shelton State Community College at 9500 Old Greensboro Road in Tuscaloosa. Tickets for the production are priced at $15 adults, $12 seniors and $8 students. The box office will open for sales on April 1, 2002 and tickets may be purchased in person or by calling 205-391-2277.

Performances are scheduled Friday and Saturday, April 12 and 13 at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, April 14 at 2 p.m. The second week of performances will begin on Wednesday, April 17 with a 2 p.m. matinee and additional performances Thursday through Saturday, April 18-20. The final performance will be presented on Sunday, April 21.

A "Pay-What-You-Can Final Dress Rehearsal" is scheduled for Thursday, April 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Art is presented with grant support from the Alabama State Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts with local production sponsorship provided by Sealy Management Company.

Shelton names Camille Cochran new dean of instruction

Dean Camille Cochran

Camille Powell Cochran has been named the new dean of instruction for Shelton State Community College, according to Shelton President Rick Rogers. Cochran has served as acting dean of instruction for the college since September of 2001.

A native of Northport, Cochran is a graduate of the University of Alabama, receiving her B.S. and M.A. degrees in mathematics from the University. She joined the faculty at Shelton State in 1979 as a mathematics instructor and served as chair of the department from 1997-2001. While at Shelton, she served as the project director for the minority science/mathematics improvement project from 1995-96 and coordinated developmental mathematics for the college from 1998-2001.

In 2000 she received the Dr. and Mrs. John Todd Award for Exceptional Achievement in Teaching. Cochran is a member of the Shelton State Alumni Association, the School-to-Career Steering committee, the Workforce Development Committee, the National Council of Instructional Administrators, the Alabama College System Instructional Officers Association, the American Mathematical Association of Two Year Colleges and the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Shelton to honor Fredd presidents with campus awards

Shelton State Community College will recognize the college's outstanding students on Tuesday, May 7 at 6:30 p.m. in the Umphrey Center on the Martin campus during the Honors' Night program, an annual event. But this year an additional honors award ceremony will take place on the Fredd campus on May 3.

These three awards will be presented for the first time this year. They are the Chester A. Fredd, Sr. Incoming Freshman Award, the I.W. Mitchell Outstanding Technical Student Award, and the Norman Cephus Special Achievement Award.

These awards recognize and perpetuate the names of the presidents who led Fredd State before its consolidation with Shelton a few years ago. The presidents were C.A. Fredd, from 1965-76; I.W. Mitchell, from 1976-82; and Norman Cephus, from 1982-90.

The C.A. Fredd award is a scholarship award for incoming freshmen. The award will be given on the following formula: 40%, grade point average; 15% community service over the last year; 15% school service over the last year; 15% recommendation by one teacher; and 15 % typed essay indicating interest in the technical program the candidate is enrolling in on the Fredd campus.

The Norman Cephus Special Achievement Award and the I.W. Mitchell Outstanding Technical Student Award will be made based on the following considerations: 40% grade point average; 15% community service over the past year; 15% school service over the past year; 15 % technical recognition; and 15% job related activities, work responsibilities, and family responsibilities.

These two award will be presented by the former presidents themselves. Standing in for his late father in presenting the C.A. Fredd award will be his son.

Dr. Cordell Wynn, special assistant to Shelton President Rick Rogers coordinated what he has called "this important project." Applications may be picked up in the main office at Fredd.
